Member Looking for Information - ESAs helping ESAs

One of our members is looking for information from anyone who is using distance education to provide individualized or small group special education instruction related to IEP goals and objectives (e.g., math, reading). If you are doing this delivery through long distance, please respond here

ESA Trends

Once in awhile, we see something happening around the country and we like to share that information. One of these is a movement in areas where there aren't any, or many, educational service agencies toward forming cooperatives. It would appear that in some of those areas, people are taking notice of their neighbors and beginning to realize the benefits of working together. ESAs set good examples of how to provide benefits to students through cooperation. A spin-off of that trend is we are seeing more states that don't have a state level cooperation move toward working together.
